Blessed with a great location & an outstanding conversion, the former Rowan Street Primitive Methodist Church, circa 1867, is now an elegant & welcoming family home.

Cocooned from the world by lush rambling gardens, the home was sold by the church in 1921 & subsequently converted to a Californian Bungalow-style residence with expansive extensions & further improvements added since. Original sandstone buttresses remain but the brick facade has been transformed with roughcast finish with decorative vents to the high gable end & tapered pillars supporting the front portico. The theme continues inside where a wide entry foyer features 11ft ceilings, window niche & polished pine floors. It opens to a spacious formal lounge where a beautiful lead-light-glazed bay window overlooks the front gardens & a working open fireplace with timber over mantle
