One of View Street's finest residences, this imposing double-storey Victorian-era home was built circa 1872 for H.B.Neill, a mining investor & chairman of Sandhurst Building Society. Originally a single storey red brick building, Neill added the second level with many more improvements implemented by ensuing custodians over the years.

Hidden behind the imposing high fence, the home sits in landscaped gardens on a large allotment approx 1518m².

It exudes grandness the moment it comes into view from the stone-paved path edged with manicured box hedges & cascading cast-iron fountain. Restored front verandahs lavished with cast iron lacework opens to the entry hall & stunning front reception rooms used as formal lounge & dining/music room. Both feature marble fireplaces, 15ft
