This multi-level home built back in the eighties when red bricks and cream paint were the fashion has been transformed by innovation, clean lines, and premium finish to create a thoroughly modern masterpiece. Externally rendered for a new look, the home presents as new from the street and even better from inside where you find loads of natural light, impeccable presentation, and contemporary style.

Sitting on a significant Strathdale corner block of 707sqm, the light-filled home now features a formal entry, four bedrooms, three modish bathrooms, powder room, fitted laundry, open-plan kitchen, dining and family living with raked ceiling and a formal split-level lounge. The chef-worthy kitchen makes a lasting first impression with stone waterfall bench tops, ample soft-close cabinetry, Smeg 900mm dual-fuel oven cooktop, window splash back, Smeg dishwasher and a stunning butler's pantry with wine
