For what we believe to be the first time ever on the open market, this storybook beauty certainly has her own enchanting story to tell.

The home was built in the 1940s, by a builder who owned an adjoining property at the time. Taking inspiration from dollhouses of the period, he built a life size version for his wife. The magnificent silky oak that towers in the front yard came from seed collected by the family at Mount Macedon.

Sitting behind a picket fence on a corner lot approx 537m², the two-storey home oozes character and charm with its high pitched roof, Juliet balcony, French doors, dormer sash windows and a tall chimney.

The ground floor is all about living and entertaining with a
